BIDDING FOR OUR BOYS

UNCLE SAM must be hard pressed to secure "fodder for cannon," as the Democratic campaign transparencies put it, to be reduced to the extremity of sending a corps of recruiting officers into a high priced mining camp for the purpose of inducing the boys of Tonopah to give up their four dollars or more per diem for the proud privilege of doing police work on the Mexican border at $13 a month. Since Wilson "kept us out of war," and won the presidential election through the efficacy of that slogan, it is passing strange that he should come around so soon after election to beg the youths of Tonopah to go forth and fight mosquitoes and lice in the fetid region of the southern border. There is no lack of patriotism in the men and boys of this camp. They are the virile sort who want to be shown and who are willing to be seen in active soldierly service, but they are not the sort of material that will crook the knee to a set of overpaid officers who delight in ordering and commanding instead of teaching and instructing. Tonopah boys are not of the mould from which they make understrappers and flunkies. If there is any fighting to do they will be the first to volunteer their services, but they are not going to be rounded up for patrol duty that can just as well be done by a man with a big stick. They are not aspiring to become policemen, without any of the policemen's prerogatives, so it might as well be understood right off the bat that the men and women of this camp do not appreciate the distinction that gave them the honor of entertaining men of the regular service in search of victims.

It was Wilson who invented the phrase of "robbing the cradle" to invade Mexico and it was the same distinguished statesman who for the past three months has been assuring us that there is no war. It was Wilson who imposed on the boys of three-fourths of the states of the union to the extent of taking them away from their mothers, wives and children for whom they were earning a living by appealing to their patriotism and loyalty to save the nation from the ravishing horde of Villistas. After the regular army establishment beguiled these youths to the chapparal of Texas, New Mexico and Old Mexico with blandishments of carrying the colors, for which many of their fathers had fought, clear through to the halls of Montezuma, the Wilson administration pledged the lads by ironclad oaths to remain true and obey orders and then abandoned them to the mercies of a lot of jackanapes from West Point with orders to break them in or break their backs. In the meantime the families of these men were fighting the grim battle of life with hunger gnawing at their vitals and hoping for the day that would bring their breadwinner back to ease the hardships of the struggle.

Boys, just take Wilson at his word, and when the soft preachment of the recruiting officer fall on your ears, says you have the solemn asseveration of the president of the United States that there is no war and therefore there can be no use for more soldiers. Mothers should inculcate the craven precept of the Wilson following that "I did not raise my boy to be a soldier" on every young man they meet, so that the recruiting officers may understand that they are in a community of free and liberty loving citizens of the United States, who are ready to give their last dollar or shed their last drop of blood for their country, but they are not ready to bolster up the mendacious campaign of an accidental president by presenting their services for police duty.

TEAR OFF THE MASK

IT is time that some intrepid son of the west should step forward and strip the shroud from the corpse of the American Mining Congress, that the nation may know that it conceals nothing more than a worm eaten cadaver unfit for the sight of decency. This combination of self-seeking officeholders is galvanized into action about once a year for the purpose of gaining recognition of interests foreign to the aims of the legitimate mining man. The sessions are occupied by the reading of weary treatises on something or another impractical, then resolutions dictated by the east are adopted, the attendants quit yawning long enough to assent to adjournment and then the mummery is over. The remains are removed to a vault where they cannot offend fastidious olfactories and the charnel house is sealed for another year.

This choice coterie of misfits met this week where they never hear of mining and know nothing of the science of extracting mineral wealth from the hidden trove of ages. The principal subject of discussion at this gathering was a paper prepared by a gentleman who spoke of "Mining as an orgy of exploitation." The author was received with applause and his ideas undoubtedly met with the approval of his audience, which would not have known the difference between a winze and a tunnel. The thesis would have been more illuminating had the speaker spent a few days underground in the mines of Tonopah, or Butte, or Cripple Creek, or Leadville, or Virginia City, where he would have learned that there is no such thing as "exploiting" a mine in these days of efficiency and investment agencies where dividends count more than the flattering prospectuses of the eastern wildcatter and where every ton of rock is carefully scheduled and weighed in the cost sheets to the extent that the outlay for every ounce of waste and every ounce of ore is as minutely classified as the most precious possession of a gem dealer. Modern mining does not take into account the exploiting of any property where there is ore sufficient to justify operation, and the laws of Nevada and every other western state boasting of mining wealth has enacted laws to checkmate just such fellows as the man who wrote the paper in question. These laws are so well administered that it may be news to the Mining Congress that the jails and penitentiaries of the country have several well known rascals of eastern antecedents who tried this exploiting game before they learned that the western people will not stand for stripping and looting a property.

TOO MUCH JOHNSON

THE people of California are not true American citizens if they do not find means to reprimand Hiram Johnson for his most dastardly perfidy in sacrificing his party for the sake of advancing himself on the political ladder. His conduct is akin to that of Benedict Arnold, the arch traitor, whose name has been held up to scorn and contumely ever since the day he betrayed his trust, conspiring against his comrades at West Point. Johnson is a Hessian of the same stripe, whose exaggerated ego and intolerable selfishness courts the plaudits of personal success at any price. Rather than go down to defeat in a manly way by taking the hazard of victory or defeat, he played the sure thing game of sacrificing others to the Moloch of greed and political aggrandizement. The name of Johnson will be a stench in the nostrils of every true hearted and red blooded American citizen, and voters will look askance at the creature whose unholy ambition snatched certain victory from the grasp of his party. Let Johnson parade the fact that he ran 200,000 ahead of his ticket! He will not profit by it. The lash of the traitor will pursue him to his dying day and before the grave yawns for his remains he will wish he had been loyal to the grand old party that never endured the reproach of tolerating cowardice or poltroonery with its corollary of personal ambitions and the sinking of party fealty.

The base sentiments of the average Native Son is translated by the epigram that one of them can live on a doughnut and a cup of coffee a day, but the Native Sons of the Johnson caliber can easily subsist on half a doughnut and then eat the hole for good measurement.

PRaises PROSPECTOR FOR MINING GROWTH

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Comprehensive discussion of all steps in the marketing of coal, oil and ore from discovery and development to distribution occupied the last day of the American Mining congress.

Resolutions adopted in the final session included one advocating a more liberal administration of the land laws and protesting against federal leasing of mineral and other land. Another resolution urged the elimination of politics from the mine inspection service and advocated a general revision of American mining laws.

Regret for the passing of the prospector, one of the picturesque phases of early mining history, was expressed by T. F. Van Wagoner of Denver, who declared that despite the advancement of scientific mining methods, development of new territory still was largely dependent on the activities of the independent searchers for ore.

The prospector, he said, was purely a creation of American mining history who did not exist outside of America and Alaska, and only in those parts of America under the provisions of the federal mining laws.

Sarcastic Wills.

One eccentric Frenchman directed that a new cooking recipe should be passed on his tomb every day, and another Frenchman, who was a lawyer, left $50,000 to a lunatic asylum, declaring that it was simply an act of restitution to the clients who were insane enough to employ his services.

Not What He Meant.

"Maria, you'll never be able to drive that nail with a nailron. For heaven's sake, use your head," admonished Mr. Stubbins.

And then he wondered why she would not speak to him the rest of the day.—Puck.

Her Secret.

Bessie—Did you tell the girls at the tea that great secret I confided to you and Elsie? Eva—No; isn't it a shame? That horrid Elsie got there first and told them before I arrived!

Freedom.

There are two freedoms—the false, where a man is free to do what he likes; the true, where a man is free to do what he ought.—Charles Kingsley.

The rule of my life is to make business a pleasure and pleasure my business.—Aaron Burr.

Decreasing production in Australia and some other countries, Mr. Van Wagoner attributed to the decay of discovery, due to an absence of the type of hardy prospector of America.

Max W. Ball of the United States bureau of mines discussed oil production and the need of conservation of petroleum products. With 3,000,000 automobiles in use in the United States by January 1, 1917, the waste of gasoline is appalling, he said. "Within the last few weeks," he continued, "I have seen millions of feet of natural gas wasting into the air, gas so rich in gasoline that it dropped from the trees like an April shower. I have seen wells capable of yielding 40,000,000 cubic feet of gas each being deliberately drowned out by pumping water into the gas sands."

"Twenty-five to thirty-five per cent is left underground, twenty to twenty-five per cent of the value of oil produced is lost through evaporation in storage; six per cent of stored oil is lost through fire. These losses are staggering and not exceptional. What a small percentage of this wonderful natural resource is saved to run your delivery or to deliver your goods at your doors or to plow the fields from which your goods must come."

panied by his mining engineer, M. M. Johnson. This morning the two left for the Ashdown mine, in company with its owner, G. B. Cornell, to make an inspection of the property.

OVERWORK CAUSE OF DRINKING

SWITCHMEN DRIVEN TO SALOONS BY FATIGUE DUE TO WANT OF REST

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Long working hours of switchmen employed in the Buffalo yards of the New York Central are responsible to a large extent for intemperance among the men, according to F. L. Eggleston, yard conductor, who resumed his testimony before the board of arbitration appointed to settle the controversy between 5500 members of the switchmen's union and 13 railroads.

Eggleston declared that in his opinion many of the switchmen are led to drink through fatigue, or because they do not get the recreation they might enjoy with shorter hours and thus seek sociability in saloons. He believed an eight hour day would decrease the evil, he said.

LABOR ON THE CANAL

ORGANIZER INSTRUCTED TO REPORT ON EMPLOYMENT OF ALIEN LABOR

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—A supplementary report on international labor relations was submitted to the convention of the American Federation of Labor by the executive council, who have received no general increase to continue their efforts in behalf of an international labor conference after the war.

The convention adopted a resolution instructing the federation officers to deputize an organizer to proceed to the canal zone to investigate conditions affecting employees there. It is stated that the employees as a whole have received no general increase in wages since work began on the canal and that there are other conditions relative to aliens doing work that rightfully belongs to mechanics.

Several fraternal delegates made brief addresses, including Dr. Shaller Matthews of the divinity school of the University of Chicago. He spoke on the relation of the church to the organized labor and trade union movement and it was his opinion that a "person was not fit to live decently in Heaven who was not permitted to live decently on this earth."
